United States Air Force Gets Deeper into Battle For Europe, Middle East

Curtain-Raising Flying Fortress Attack on Rouen, France, Will Be Followed by Steadily-Mounting and Closely Co-ordinated American-British Aerial Effort; Expansion Expected To Be Rapid

By WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The United States air force was rising today toward its full place in a titanic struggle for control of the skies over Europe and the Middle East.

American two-motor bombers have entered the air war in Africa and four-motor Flying Fortresses stand ready to repeat and intensify raids like yesterday's on the Nazi-held European continent.

The RAF, already deep into the fight, paced the growing onslaught last night with a smashing new blow to Osnabrueck, key to German rail lines to the Rhineland.

United States and RAF leaders agreed that the curtain-raising Flying Fortress attack by daylight on Rouen, France, yesterday, would be followed by a steadily-mounting and closely co-ordinated American-British aerial effort.

This island already has been converted into a vast aircraft carrier with hundreds of planes in the air constantly, on patrol, sweeping the channel, and striking out on the attack.

Medium Bombers Used

While the "center ring" in this deadly air circus is this island, the RAF and United States Army Air Force also are chopping away at the Axis in the Middle East. There American headquarters reported its medium bombers joining the big four-motor Liberators in attacking Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces while United States fighter pilots were serving with RAF desert squadrons.

Dispatches from Cairo tonight reported new American Army contingents, including aviation ground staffs and other units, wearing the deep-dish type United States helmet, being debarked in the Middle East to join the growing aggregation of American power in that theater.

Initial bomber and fighter attacks in Africa had been held back until sufficient ground forces and reserves were on hand to carry through attacks continuously. American air officers said the expansion of the United States air force now will be exceedingly rapid.

A thousand-mile flying trip over this island revealed preparations for a total air war on every hand. A glance from the plane from an altitude of 5,000 feet at most places took in at least half a dozen airfields within the range of the eye.

Even on days when bad weather cancels attacks there are always half a dozen planes darting about within sight.

British informants have expressed belief that the German air force gradually is being forced to withdraw forces from Russia as the RAF blows become more intense, and American bombers increase their activity.

These experts look for a 100 percent air war over this island and the continent between the RAF-American forces and the Germans as soon as winter closes down on the Russian front.

Labor Victory Board To Meet At Annapolis

State Group and Manpower Commission Official To Discuss Problems

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 18 (AP)—Maryland's Labor Victory Board, headed by Governor O'Connor, meets here tomorrow to discuss defense labor problems with A. A. Liveright, Federal Manpower Commission director for the Baltimore area.

O'Connor said today that he viewed the conference, to be held in the State House, as "one of the most important meetings scheduled here since the war's outbreak. It seems with possibilities."

Questions of drafting labor, recruit women into Maryland defense industry, "absenteeism," and stimulation of the transfer of workers from non-essential to essential industries are on the agenda, the governor said.

Plans To Be Submitted

The issue of "voluntary" versus forced labor recruiting would be a major discussion point, he said. Liveright announced yesterday that tests now are being made in the Baltimore area to determine whether federal legislation, ordering the drafting of labor, eventually might be necessary.

Since Paul V. McNutt, federal manpower chairman, expressed interest in the Labor Victory Board's "Women in Industry" rally, held several weeks ago in Baltimore, O'Connor expects several plans relating to this phase of the state's labor problems to be submitted.

"It is highly possible," he said, "that a definite program concerning recruiting of women may be adopted and announced tomorrow."

Further Meetings Seen

The meetings mark the first time since Liveright was appointed Baltimore manpower director that he has met with the Labor Victory Board. O'Connor predicted that because the two groups are interested in the same problems they "undoubtedly will meet often in the future to further labor efficiency in this area."

The board consists of three AFL and three CIO representatives with O'Connor as chairman. Two LVB members, Frank N. Kershaw and Albert Attalah, were appointed to the Manpower commission's Labor-Management committee recently by McNutt. Other members are Robert J. Brubbaum, Joseph Gillis, George A. Meyers, and Sidney R. Katz.

11 Metal Plants Are Affected by Work Stoppage

Interfering with Production Vital to War Effort, Reynolds Says

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 18 (AP)—A labor stoppage today at the eleven plants here of the Reynolds Metals Company, manufacturers of aluminum airplane parts, was said by R. S. Reynolds, president of the company, to be interfering with production vital to our war effort.

CIO leaders said the stoppage was a "company lockout," while APOFL officials termed the trouble "Cold sabotage of the war effort by the CIO."

Estimates as to the full extent of the stoppage varied but all agreed serious damage to the war effort was being caused.

Joseph D. Cannon, CIO regional director, declared a total of 2,000 men working in the eleven plants here were out and "more joining them constantly."

Reynolds said all of the plants were in operation but with reduced personnel.

An APOFL official merely said "many men are out."

R. W. Pasnick, field representative of the International Union, CIO Aluminum Workers of America, said the trouble started yesterday when Ray Stober, a CIO worker at one of the plants was fired "for no good reason."

"Today the men refused to return to work until Stober is taken back," Pasnick stated. "This isn't a strike, it's a lockout. We haven't a contract there but when they discriminate against our men we are going to try to get their jobs back."

Edward H. Weyler, secretary of the Kentucky Federation of Labor, said the trouble started "when one man, a CIO leader, was solicited for CIO memberships during working hours. The company fired him, which was the proper thing to do."

Weyler explained that the APOFL contract with Reynolds expired July 1 but that a perpetuation clause kept the contract alive while the War Labor Board acts on disputed points in the contract.

Weyler said a request for a National Labor Relations Board election is on file and that a hearing is expected soon. The APOFL official added that the jurisdictional strife has been under way for several months.

The period for the announced casualties was between May 15 and Aug. 15.

Soviet losses for the period were given as 606,000 dead, wounded and missing.

The Germans were reported to have lost approximately 4,000 guns of various caliber, and not less than 4,000 planes since May 15. Soviet equipment losses were listed as 3,152 guns, 3,198 planes and 2,240 tanks.

22 Divisions Transferred

The Russians announced last June that the Germans had lost 10,000,000 men in the first year of the war, of which 4,500,000 were killed.

But despite these losses the Germans were admitted to have "considerable superiority in troops and equipment on several sectors of the front," because of the transfer of twenty-two divisions from France, Belgium and Holland to the Russian front.

Another seventy divisions, the announcement said, were mobilized by the Germans for anti-Russian service in Italy, Rumania, Hungary and Slovakia. Compulsory mobilization also has been carried out in Nazi-conquered Poland and Czechoslovakia, the Russians said.

The Russians acknowledged severe industrial and territorial losses in the Don Basin and the Caucasus where the Germans have made (Continued on Page 12, Col. 3)

Officials here said these drives, although not a part of the general campaign, indicated the trend the enforcement would take. Beaches, amusement parks and other places outside of cities to which motorists drive for relaxation or amusement in normal times will be covered by spotters during the checkup.

All automobiles showing extra rationing stickers or no stickers at all, will be checked. "Repeaters" will be notified by OPA to show cause why they should not be prosecuted for illegal use of gasoline allowed them for essential driving.

Few Volunteers To Be Used

Enforcement officials said the drive would have to be started in about a dozen places. They declined to indicate exactly when it would get under way. Few if any volunteers will be used as spotters, it was emphasized.

In the seventeen Eastern states affected by gasoline rationing, OPA now has between 450 and 500 paid inspectors. Not all of them will be available for use at the same time, but it was pointed out that investigators from other federal agencies, such as the Wage Hour Administration, could be borrowed for the work.

NEW YORK'S POLITICAL FOES MEET

Attorney General John J. Bennett, right, and Senator James Mead, who are competing for the Democratic nomination in New York's governorship race, met at Rochester, N. Y., where they addressed the New York Labor Convention. The race between Mead and Bennett is being watched nationally since Mead has the backing of President Roosevelt while Bennett's campaign is being managed by James Farley, F. D. R.'s former campaign manager.

Germans Lose 1,250,000 Men in Three Months

Russians Say 480,000 of Them Were Killed; Assert Nazis Are Draining Reserve Strength

MOSCOW, Aug. 17 (AP)—The Germans have lost 1,250,000 men in three months, 480,000 of them killed, and are draining reserve strength from all Western Europe to bolster the drive into Russia, the Soviet Information Bureau announced in a special communique tonight.

The period for the announced casualties was between May 15 and Aug. 15.

Soviet losses for the period were given as 606,000 dead, wounded and missing.

The Germans were reported to have lost approximately 4,000 guns of various caliber, and not less than 4,000 planes since May 15. Soviet equipment losses were listed as 3,152 guns, 3,198 planes and 2,240 tanks.

BRAZIL'S PRESIDENT SAYS SHIPS OF AGGRESSORS WILL BE SEIZED

Citizens Demand War against Axis for Sinking of Five Vessels

RIO DE JANEIRO, Wednesday, Aug. 19 (AP)—A United States plane was reported today to have bombed an Axis submarine fifty miles off Aracaju on the Brazilian coast in an area where the underwater craft have been preying on Brazilian shipping.

It was not disclosed immediately whether the attack was successful. A naval spokesman also said that an Axis surface raider was loose in the South Atlantic and had been sighted several days ago near the Brazilian island of Trindade, 1,000 miles off the coast. Presumably Allied warships are searching for it, but the spokesman would not discuss that probability.

Lacey Pilots Plane

The government news agency identified the pilot of the attacking United States plane as Lieut. Jack Lacey.

The Government Agencia Nacional issued the following account under an Aracaju dateline: "Early today a North American plane commanded by Of-

Russians Retreat Near Stalingrad; Nazis Use Tanks

New German Gains Reported but Reds Appear To Be Stronger in West

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Wednesday, Aug. 19 (AP)—Smashing German tank attacks forced the Red army to withdraw in one sector of the vital defenses before the Volga industrial city of Stalingrad, and drove a wedge into another sector, the Soviet midnight communique said today, but in other areas Russian resistance was reported generally strengthened.

The new German gains were southeast of Kletskaya, seventy-five miles northwest of Stalingrad, where the Germans appeared to be concentrating their drive to cut the Volga.

The communique also reported fighting in the region of Pyatigorsk, fifteen miles south of Mineralnye Vody, indicating that the Germans had made new advances on the South Caucasus front.

On the other hand, the Russians appeared to hold the initiative in the Krasnodar sector, farther to the west and the communique said one Soviet unit in counter-attacks routed a battalion of Germans who had forced a crossing of the Kuban river.

Reds on Offensive

Earlier reports said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's forces had occupied an important line in the defense of Stalingrad and that the Red army had launched an offensive far to the north on the Leningrad front, forcing the Germans to withdraw to some extent.

Meanwhile, the ferocity of the fighting was indicated by a special Soviet communique which said the Germans had lost 1,250,000 men in the three months up to August 15—480,000 of them killed—and had drained much of their reserve strength from Western Europe to strengthen their drive into Russia.

The special communique said the Germans had withdrawn twenty-two divisions from France, Belgium and Holland and had mobilized seventy other divisions from Italy, Rumania, Hungary and Slovakia for service on the Russian front.

The casualties covered in the communique were for the period May 15 to August 15. During the same time Russian losses were given as 606,000 dead, wounded and missing.

Speaking of the fighting on the Stalingrad sector Iztvestia said Russian infantry, artillery and tanks "fulfilled their order to halt the enemy by all means."

Flying Fortress Production Will Be Accelerated

Boeing Plant Operating at Only 40 Per Cent of Ultimate Capacity

By AMY PORTER

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 18 (AP)—The big bombers that made Monday's spectacular raid over France will be produced at a tremendously accelerated rate, starting immediately, it was announced today by H. Oliver West, executive vice-president and production chief of the Boeing Aircraft Company.

West said the government had approved "additional schedules," and that "indications received from Washington" a few days ago led him to believe shortages retarding production would be relieved.

Good News for Seattle

"We are operating at only forty per cent of our ultimate capacity," West told newspaper correspondents on the National Association of Manufacturers tour of war plants, "but under the new schedules we'll accelerate until we reach 100 per cent a year from now. This means a 40 or 50 per cent increase over the maximum rate we had set as a goal for next December."

West's announcement is good news to the war-conscious citizens of Seattle, each of whom takes personal pride in the famous Boeing Flying Fortress.

It's bread-and-butter news to the waiting list of women, too. (Continued on Page 12, Col. 5)

Alexander Will Command British In Middle East

"Last Man out of Dunkerque" Is Named To Succeed Gen. Auchinleck

By ALFRED E. WALL

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The British picked their toughest general tonight to destroy the Axis forces in North Africa—General Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, "last man out of Dunkerque" and master of the brilliant retreat from the Japanese through the jungles of Burma.

The appointment of the slim, wiry, 50-year-old Ulsterman to succeed Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck to the Middle East command, was connected in many minds here with Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Moscow last week and to a war office desire to inject new genius into an increasingly serious situation.

Churchill stopped over in Cairo briefly and sources here said they believed his conferences with Joseph Stalin in the Kremlin were concerned, in part, with the desert warfare and the Axis menace to Suez.

Other Changes Made

It was believed here that while Hitler would try to reach the Caspian sea and master the Caucasus before winter sets in he would not neglect the Southern arm of the vast pincer movement. There have been reports recently that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has been feverishly moving up men and supplies in an effort to counteract the growing British and American forces and supplies.

The war office, in announcing Alexander's appointment made public two other vital changes in leadership in the Middle East: Lieut.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery, former commander of the Southeastern command in Britain, succeeds to the field command formerly held by Lieut.-Gen. Neil M. Ritchie as head of the Eighth Army in Egypt, and Maj. Gen. Herbert Lumsden becomes commander of the Thirtieth Corps, succeeding Lieut.-Gen. W. H. E. (Strafer) Gott, recently killed in the desert.

Auchinleck Marks Time

The war office did not mention a new assignment for Auchinleck, who was commander when the big Axis offensive forced the allied armies out of Libya and for a time menaced Alexandria. Auchinleck had commanded in the Middle East since July 2, 1941, when he succeeded Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, who was assigned to India. Last June 25 after the Axis seized Tobruk and continued to advance he per-

LEADERS OF OPPOSING DEMOCRAT FACTIONS READY FOR POW-POW

Selection of Candidate for Governor Would Avoid Fight in Convention

By WILLIAM W. TYLER

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt intervened tonight in a futile attempt to end the battle over selection of New York's Democratic gubernatorial nominee—a battle interpreted in political circles as affecting the president's prestige in his home state.

A letter from the president was read by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman during a four-hour "harmony" conference of a score of Democratic leaders seeking to avert a clash on the floor of the state convention opening in Brooklyn tomorrow. State Chairman James A. Farley interviewed after the conference ended without agreement on a candidate, said that the president's communication mentioned no names but offered "suggestions as to what could be done in the situation."

The text of the letter was not immediately available.

A scramble for delegates—the first floor fight at a Democratic state convention in more than twenty years—appeared a certainty between proponents of United States Senator James M. Mead and Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr. Mead is the express choice of President Roosevelt, Governor Lehman, National Party Chairman, Edward J. Flynn and Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York. Bennett is backed by Farley, who twice guided the president's White

RATIONING OF MEAT TO RETAIL OUTLETS URGED BY WPB GROUP

Allocation Would Be Designed To Give Each Area Its Fair Share

By OVID MARTIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The War Production Board received a recommendation from its Food Requirements committee today that the government allocate supplies of meat among butcher shops, stores and other retail outlets in a move to assure equitable distribution of limited supplies.

The recommendation grew out of a seasonal shortage of meats that has developed in several sections of the country, particularly in the East, as a result of an unprecedented war demand.

Such a plan, if put into effect by the WPB, would give each distributing agency a certain percentage of the meat it sold in a similar past period. It would follow the allocation plan used in distributing sugar before consumer rationing was put into effect.

The committee, headed by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, directed, however, that the Office of Price Administration formulate a consumer rationing plan for use only in the event the allocations system and some readjustments in present price ceilings on meats failed to accomplish an equitable distribution.

No Real Shortage

The Agriculture department continued to emphasize that there was no shortage of meat when judged by past consumption. It says that supplies available during the twelve-

Steel Companies Accept WLB Order For Wage Increase

Oppose Making Five-and-One Half Cent Increase Retroactive to February

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Big Steel surprised CIO union leaders by putting up no fight today against a demand for a 5½ cent wage increase, but in hearings before the War Labor Board, it opposed making any raise retroactive to February.

The amount of the proposed increase was based on the raise which the WLB recently ordered for Little Steel, but the United States Steel Company argued there were no facts to justify the retroactive provision demanded by the CIO United Steel Workers.

The steel company's director of industrial relations, John A. Stephens, argued that the present union contract did not expire until Aug. 2, and that any raise should be made effective as of no earlier date.

In reply, Philip Murray, CIO president, and Lee Pressman, CIO counsel, replied that under uniform practices in the steel industry, the raise should be made effective as of the same date that it began in Little Steel. In addition they said the union could have cancelled the contract at any time on twenty days notice, but did not do so because it believed the decision of Little Steel would be accepted as a precedent.

Negotiations between the union and the company reached a deadlock nearly a month ago, and last week the case was certified to the WLB.

The union representatives had been under the impression that the company would fight any increase higher than 3½ cents per hour. However, Stephens' brief, in referring to the proposed 5½ cent increase, merely said:

"The application of this increase to the companies involved in this case is a matter for this board to determine under policies which have been announced."

The wages of 300,000 workers are involved. They are employed by five of Big Steel's operating companies: Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, Columbia Steel Company, American Steel and Wire Company, National Tube Company, and Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company.

U. of Md. Denied Military Rating

Dr. Byrd Says Disadvantages Would Have Outweighed Advantages

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Aug. 18 (AP)—Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, said application was made to the War Department to grant the University of Maryland a military college status but that after further consideration the application was voided.

"Application was made," Byrd said, "for a military college rating, but after investigation it was found that the disadvantages of such a rating would have outweighed the advantages, and the application was accordingly withdrawn."

Commenting on the situation, Col. Robert E. Wyss, professor of military science and training, said, "Naturally I'm prejudiced for it, but the administration doesn't think it feasible. I realize, of course, that it would mean changing the entire character of the school and that expenses of the individual student, especially for such items as dress uniforms, would be greatly increased."

"However," the colonel added, "there is no foretelling what may happen in two or three years time. The university by that time may return to the situation that existed during the First World War where by all students were paid a dollar a day and were considered as members of the regular army."

SURPRISE BLACKOUT IS HELD IN EAST

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18 (AP)—Pennsylvania and New Jersey, encompassing 53,000 square miles and 15,000,000 population, joined tonight in a vast demonstration of civilian readiness for air raids.

Sirens sounded a surprise twenty-five minute blackout test at 9:31 p. m. (EWT), plunging the two state areas in darkness and summoning 500,000 civilian defense wardens to their posts.

Arrangements had been made in advance by defense authorities of both states with the time and day a secret.

The rehearsal was the biggest in the nation's history with the possible exception of the West coast's elaborate drills that followed the attack on Pearl Harbor.

O'Connell Is Promoted

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18 (AP)—Promotion of Major Richard C. O'Connell, special officer for the Third Service Command and president of the Baltimore City Council, to lieutenant colonel, was announced today by Major General Milton A. Reckord, commanding general of the Third Service Command.

Col. O'Connell, who has been attached to headquarters since Dec. 13, 1941, is to continue his present duties as special service officer in charge of morale activities.

Girl Battalion Visits Desert Soldiers Weekly

Pay $5 To Go to Trading Post and Dance with Service Men on Leave

By EDITH GAYLORD
NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP)—Uncle Sam's thousands of men on maneuvers in California simulating desert warfare conditions find a battalion of girls moves into a desert outpost recreation hall to do battle with the blues of isolated soldiers.

Founder and leader of this desert battalion is Mrs. Edward G. Robinson, wife of the film star and California United Service Organizations chairman, of Beverly Hills. Mrs. Robinson was in New York today to tell national USO officials about the battalion.

Pay $5 To Go
"Privates" are young girls, chaperoned by USO women and army wives, who each weekend pay $5 each to climb aboard army-chartered buses in Beverly Hills to go to Cochella trading post, twenty-three miles into the desert beyond Palm Springs.

The famous winter resort is a blast furnace in summer months. Unbroken heat ranges above 135 degrees Fahrenheit. Heretofore only one white woman has stayed through the summer. Quantities of salt tablets are indispensable.

Saturday evenings some 2,500 soldiers, brought from their isolated camp in army trucks, descend upon USO headquarters at Cochella to dance with 200 girls.

"The girls dance for five or six hours without leaving the floor," Mrs. Robinson said. "A sixteen-year-old boy moves around the dance floor with a towel for them to wipe their faces and with drinks of water."

When the dance is over, the soldiers set up army cots and make the "beds" for the girls. After the men have left, the girls discover the beds are "short-sheeted" in best army style.

At 6:30 a. m. Sunday an army detail awakens the girls and cleans the room. Volunteer army cooks prepare breakfast. There is swimming in a pool which accommodates 1,000 persons.

Lunch Then More Dancing
Following a light lunch provided by the USO there is more dancing. The girls then leave in time to be home, miles away, before midnight.

Before inclusion in the battalion a girl must be finger-printed, supply recommendations from two reputable citizens and sign a pledge that she will take no liquor, she will not leave USO premises and she will not divulge any military information.

"These girls feel themselves a definite part of the war effort," said Mrs. Robinson. "They will make almost any sacrifice to save the $5 and come each week. They are from all groups, stenographers, debutantes, college."

One girl's mother, upon seeing her after a weekend of dancing in the desert, remarked that her daughter's feet looked like salmon steaks and she didn't know whether to send for the doctor or salt and pepper.

Bucs Shut Out Cincinnati, 3 to 0
CINCINNATI, Aug. 18 (AP)—Johnny Lanning gave the stumbling Cincinnati Reds another push to night as the Pittsburgh Pirates took a 3 to 0 victory before one of the smallest crowds of the season.

Only 6,475 turned out to see Bucky Walters try to win without runs and Bucky couldn't do it. He even contributed a triple with one out in the third inning, but the cream of the Cincinnati batting order couldn't knock him home.

The Pirates opened up early, scoring a run in the first inning on a pass to Pete Coscarart and singles by Jim Waddell and Bob Elliott. They added some velvet in the fourth when Eddie Joest muffed Elliott's liner at short; Elbie Fletcher and Vince DiMaggio singled, scoring Elliott; Blimp Phelps received an intentional pass, and Frankie Gustine sent out a long fly to bring in Fletcher.

Consumer Rationing Of Fuel Oil in East Proposed by Henderson

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson presented to the War Production Board today a half dozen detailed proposals—including consumer rationing—to alleviate the fuel oil shortage on the Atlantic Seaboard next winter.

Chairman Donald M. Nelson decided to appoint a small committee of WPB members with full power to make a choice among the Henderson proposals and order the program into effect as soon as possible. The committee probably will be named tomorrow.

"Rationing of fuel oil was one of several plans presented by Mr. Henderson, but that doesn't necessarily mean that it will be the one selected," said a spokesman for Nelson who did not wish to be named. Nelson himself did not comment.

Alderson Replies To Criticism of Women Workers

Says West Is Wrong in Terming Ladies "Not Serious in Defense Work"

By RUTH COWAN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Stirred by an airplane manufacturer's complaint that many women in his plant are too frivolous, the women's division of the labor department replied today that the vast majority of women workers are doing their bit seriously and efficiently.

The observations of H. Oliver West, executive vice president of the Boeing Aircraft Company at Seattle, Wash., don't jibe with reports from his fellow airplane manufacturers on the West Coast and the East, the officials here said.

Great Many Not Serious
West said that although some of the women in his plant were doing fine work, a great many were there "for other than serious purposes." They appear to him as "youngsters in search of a good time," pursuing their social life in the factory workrooms and refusing to wear the clothes for safety.

All this brought a big chuckle from Mary Anderson, who as head of the women's division in this war as in the last is charged with aiding the integration of woman-power into industry.

"It would seem Mr. West is one of those men who didn't want women in the plant in the first place," she smiled. "He is like a lot of foremen who never having worked with women are afraid of them. They complain: 'How can we work with women? We can't cuss 'em out.'"

Even as she talked a spokesman for the Glenn L. Martin Company said that "maybe West Coast women are different," but as for the women workers at his company's Baltimore plant, "the majority feel they are contributing seriously to the nation's war effort, and are doing a good job."

Some Are Frivolous
Of course some women are frivolous, said Miss Anderson. "But all women shouldn't be penalized because a few are frivolous and probably flirting. That doesn't apply to women alone. There must be a man to flirt with. And who can tell who started the flirtation?"

She suggested that perhaps the beginning of the problem in West's plant "might be in the employment policy. There has been a tendency to hire girls right out of school, many of whom are not mature enough to take the work seriously."

She added she thought that employers had missed an opportunity in not hiring women over thirty-six years of age. Mature women of responsibility have as much understanding as men of the present serious conditions, she continued.

Lost Gas Book Cases Increase

State OPA Attorney Expresses Doubt That All Claims Are Valid

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18 (AP)—State OPA Attorney Reuben Oppenheimer said today that local rationing boards in Maryland were receiving what appeared to be an "excessive daily volume" of appeals for new gasoline ration books to replace those said to be lost and expressed doubt that all cases reported were valid.

"One reason for doubting the authenticity of some such cases," Oppenheimer said, "is the relatively few reports of lost sugar ration books reaching the local boards, despite the fact that sugar books in the hands of consumers are much more numerous."

The appeal will be investigated, Oppenheimer said, adding "in all fairness to all motorists we feel obliged to investigate any doubtful claims of loss of books. Local boards are being asked to submit records of such cases to the enforcement division and motorists whose claims are not altogether convincing will be summoned to give further justification of their request for a replacement."

Senators Defeat Athletics, 2 to 1

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Washington Senators defeated the Philadelphia Athletics tonight, 2-1, before 6,000 spectators. Alejandro Carrasquel went the route for the Senators and Phil Marchildon was the losing hurler. The game was delayed forty-five minutes by a trial blackout.

Unlucky Fellow
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19 (AP)—City Editor Null Adams of the Memphis Press-Scimitar decided to spend his vacation at home—you know, loafing, odd jobs, man-about-the-house stuff.

Next day, he tackled the hedge—ran into a hornet's nest. Disgusted, he went horseback riding.

Churchill Inspects Allied Troops in Western Desert

Holds Discussions with Middle East Leaders during Trip to Moscow

CAIRO, Wednesday, Aug. 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill took advantage of his trip to Moscow to inspect Allied troops in the western desert and confer with American, Fighting French, Imperial and Dominion military leaders in the Middle East, it was disclosed officially today.

He stopped over in Cairo long enough to spend one day in the desert visiting Australia and South African divisions and RAF advanced squadrons on the El Alamein front, the announcement said, and to hold "important discussions with service chiefs and other British authorities in the Middle East."

It was stated later, however, that he also conferred with Maj. Gen. Russell L. Maxwell, United States commander in the Middle East; Gen. Charles DeGaulle, commander of the Fighting French; Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, prime minister of South Africa; and Lieut. Gen. Sir Bernard C. Freyberg, commander of New Zealand troops in the Middle East.

British officers who took part in the conferences included General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in India, and General Sir Henry Wilson, commander of the British Ninth Army.

Some of these officers, including General Maxwell, accompanied Churchill to Moscow for his talks with Premier Joseph Stalin.

"The prime minister reviewed the whole situation in the Middle East with minister of state, the Rt. Hon. Richard Casey, and Sir Miles Lampson, British ambassador, the announcement said."

It also disclosed that the prime minister was received in audience by King Farouk of Egypt and also by Nahas Pasha, Egyptian prime minister.

Churchill's visit to the desert where he could study the situation at first hand took him to the El Alamein and Ruweisat fronts.

Solomons Battle May Be Long One

Ultimate Success Depends on Naval Battle, Writer Says

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Aug. 18 (AP)—Extremely bitter land fighting in the Solomon Islands which may continue for weeks or months was reported tonight by a New Zealand correspondent in a dispatch under a "south Pacific Port" date.

United States forces "now have won sufficient success in sea engagements to enable the reinforcing and supplying of land forces," the dispatch added.

"Japanese units which were in the Solomons at the opening of operations either have been sunk or have fled to the Caroline Islands," it said.

The dispatch, which was carried by the New Zealand Press Association, said "strategically the Japanese have lost Guadal canal, Tulagi and Florida."

The correspondent said his source expressed the belief the "ultimate success of the operation turns on a crucial naval battle."

A BRITISH PORT, Wednesday, Aug. 19 (AP)—A large contingent of Canadian troops, including armored and air units, has arrived here after crossing the Atlantic without incident in a convoy guarded by warships.

Policeman Dies In Gun Fight

Elyria, O. Officer Kills Negro; Body of Nude Woman Found in Car

ELYRIA, O., Aug. 18 (AP)—Patrolman Howard Taft, 29-year-old rookie policeman, and a Cleveland negro were killed tonight in a gun battle that led to the discovery of the body of a nude white woman in the trunk compartment of the negro's car.

The gun battle started when the officer stopped the negro's car after it had hit another machine and struck a woman pedestrian.

Police Captain Corbett E. Sutham said the slain negro was tentatively identified from an automobile registration certificate as James Webb, of Cleveland.

He was shot six times by Patrolman Taft.

There was no report on how the woman, about 25, had died.

Captain Sutham said that as Taft walked to the negro's car, he was shot three times.

Detective Sergeant Martin P. Cooney, head of the Cleveland Homicide Squad, identified the negro as Nathaniel Spruel, 35, former night club operator who recently was convicted in Cleveland of contributing to the delinquency of four teen-age white girls. He had appeared from the conviction.

He was shot six times after opening fire on the patrolman, who was taking him to jail for questioning about an automobile collision. Taft, struck by three bullets, died after he was taken to a hospital.

Pending an examination by the coroner, there was no report on how the woman, about 25, died.

Patrolman Don Andrews, 28, who was riding in a police cruiser with Taft, said Spruel was overtaken shortly after a collision.

Andrews gave this account of the gun battle.

Taft started to drive Spruel's car to police headquarters, with Spruel beside him, while Andrews followed in the cruiser. After driving a short way, Taft stopped to straighten a fender damaged in the collision. Spruel also got out and took the ignition key.

Refusing at first to surrender the key, Spruel then walked to the car as if to get in, but pulled a .45 caliber pistol from the automobile and opened fire on Taft. Falling to the street, Taft returned fire, emptying his service revolver while prone.

Also taken from the car were about eighty boxes of women's hose and a quantity of clothing.

Man Found Unconscious From Gunshot Wound Dies Near Frederick
FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 18 (AP)—Harold P. Virtt, of Knoxville, Md., found unconscious from a gunshot wound by his brother, died tonight.

Virtt was found at his home this afternoon by his brother Roy, who said he was unconscious from a gunshot wound when he found him. The brother said Virtt had been arrested last week for the second time on a charge of drunken driving and was to have appeared yesterday for a hearing.

Gladwin Hill Tells of Strange and Dizzy Doings in the News World

By GLADWIN HILL
NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (Wide World)—Feeling Blue?

Cheer up with the dizzy digest's periodical parade of singularly oppressed people, who amongst them have unquestionably acquired more—and stranger—woes than yours:

George Meister, Chicago grocer—misaid his revolver for the first time in four years—and a holdup man came in.

Three stevedores in San Francisco—they generously sampled a cargo of nuts, then discovered they were a new substitute for castor oil beans.

An Elliottsville, N. Y., highway crew—four hours after they finished repairing a washed-out bridge, another downpour washed it out again.

A Detroit factory worker—after he hit himself on the head to demonstrate a new safety helmet, he discovered he'd forgotten to put on the helmet.

Mrs. Ella Barr of Philadelphia—after she sold some old clothes for fifteen cents, she remembered they contained three diamond rings worth $750.

Pete Hackstatter of Nevada, Mo.—a fugitive from a nearby insane asylum fed his livestock so much grain they couldn't walk.

Edward Guenther, East St. Louis, Ill., grocer—for the eighth time in six years a car crashed into the front of his store.

S. K. Beam, Beatrice, Neb., farmer—an impractical joker bored six holes in the bottom of his water tank.

Francis Murphy of Newark, N. J.—he found his car with three tires, two wheels and the battery gone, the gas tank drained, and—a parking tag on it.

Everett Abbott, Los Angeles parking lot attendant—he hopped into a car to move it and sat down smack on a swarm of bees—Oh, Sam!

STATE REPUBLICANS WILL FILL TICKET

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Republican State Central Committee will meet Wednesday at 1 p. m. to fill one congressional and two statewide vacancies on its ticket.

W. David Tilghman, Jr., chairman, said all 168 members of the committee had been notified of the Baltimore meeting. The dead line for party committees to fill ticket vacancies is Saturday, August 22.

The candidates to be nominated by committee action are for the offices of attorney general and comptroller and for representative from the Third Congressional district.

Tilghman said he expected no contest to develop at the open meeting but added that the names of the likely candidates could not be announced because some members of the central committee had not had an opportunity to discuss the probable candidates.

Walker Lashes Out At Work Stoppages

Postmaster Addresses Annual Supreme Knights of Columbus Convention

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 18 (AP)—Referring to "selfish stoppages of work," confusions, interruptions and insufficiencies in the war effort, Postmaster General Frank C. Walker called on Americans tonight to identify those persons responsible "by their fruits rather than their words."

In his address prepared for the sixtieth annual convention dinner of the Supreme Council of Knights of Columbus, Walker lashed out at what he called "the utterly unpatriotic ambitions of persons or of groups, who with mincing words about national interests, foster their own designs while our people engage in a death-struggle with foreign enemies."

"It is not Democracy," he said, "that causes the confusions and stoppages which slow the onward rush of our overwhelming triumph. Such things are caused by the contemptible spirit of personal and group dictatorships. x x x and you know who these persons are: you read the news of the day. Watch their actions and disregard their wordy explanations."

Our war aims "are identically the same as our peace aims," Walker said, declaring the nation shall not make the mistake of allowing "chess-board" peace conference diplomacy under which, in former days, "a war could be won by the valorous and lost, in the peace, to the adroit."

Cardinals Blank Chicago Cubs, 5-0

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Cardinals jumped on Claude Passeau early tonight for a 5 to 0 victory over the Chicago Cubs. The triumph, coupled with Philadelphia's defeat of league-leading Brooklyn, boosted the Cards to within six and one-half games of the top.

Army Expected To Take Control Of Woods Plant

Massachusetts Firm Refuses To Comply with War Labor Board Ruling

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—A White House order to the army to take over the plant of the S. A. Woods Machine Company of South Boston, Mass., appeared imminent tonight in view of the firm's defiance of a War Labor Board ruling.

The company, manufacturers of important war equipment, flatly refused yesterday to comply with an order requiring it to include maintenance-of-membership and arbitration clauses in a contract with CIO workers.

President Gets Issue
("The maintenance clause would require members of the union to remain members throughout the life of the contract.")

After a 2 p. m. deadline for compliance had passed, the board promptly met and shortly thereafter Wayne L. Morse, public member, went to the White House to place the issue before President Roosevelt. Horse later went to the office of Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson, who had wired to H. C. Dodge, Woods president, his insistence upon compliance.

It was believed the president tomorrow would order the army to take over the plant.

Firm Re-affirms Stand
The board's final request to the machine firm brought a reply reaffirming the company's previously expressed attitude.

"We regret that you are disposed to deny us a court test of your powers," said the company's statement. "Neither union maintenance nor compulsory arbitration have anything to do with production in our plant. Production in our plant is in no wise jeopardized by the management. If threatened it will be only as the result of the activities of organized labor under the cloak of your decision."

WATCH YOU STEP

... Accidents
Cost lives and battleships!

YES, it's literally true. Accidents and sickness, last year, cost this country thirty-two times as much as all strikes put together! Why accidents alone resulted in a loss of 649 million man-hours—enough to construct 92 battleships, and goodness only knows how many billions of bullets!

So—ch your step! And, if a competent First Aid service of a physician is delayed, neglected cuts, abrasions or bruises may lead to serious infections. Don't multiply those lost man-hours by the loss of your country's productive capacity now.

Army of School Children Must Be Prepared for Education Campaign

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The children are getting ready to go to school. They are Democracy's army of the future. It is in order that they have the freedom to carry on that we are going through all this agony.

Just as the army of the fighting forces must be prepared against the danger of bad health, so the army of school children must be prepared so that, as far as possible, poor health will not interfere with their campaign for education.

Every year I advise parents along this line at this season. Every year a new army of youngsters appears to enter school. So I feel it my duty to repeat the advice every year.

The greatest dangers to youth are the contagious diseases. Children have not yet developed their immunities yet and any germ may lay them low. When a person has lived as long as I have in this vale of tears, he has been exposed to nearly everything in the way of bacterial life and has developed protections. I could go into any epidemic with a good chance of coming out unscathed. I haven't even had a cold for ten years.

Infant Immunity Ends

But not so the beginning citizen. New-born babies have a passive immunity to most contagions which they get from their mothers. But this wears out at the end of six or eight months. These new-born babies are not exposed to much cross infection. Their milk supply is, or should be, uninfected.

At about six months, as I said, the passive immunity begins to wear off and the individual has to develop active immunity from his own cells. He either does this or active immunity is artificially supplied to him by vaccines.

To show how natural immunity grows year by year: in the days when diphtheria vaccination was not yet done on a large scale, groups of school and preschool children were examined by the Schick test to determine their immunity to diphtheria. This is the way the age groups were reported:

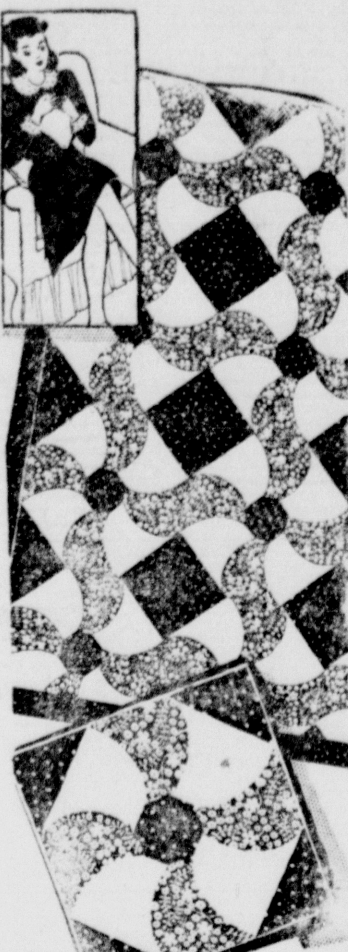

Age 1 year—Sixty percent of all individuals susceptible to diphtheria and showed no immunity.

Age 5 years—Forty percent of all individuals susceptible to diphtheria and showed no immunity.

Age 10 years—Thirty percent of all individuals susceptible to diphtheria and showed no immunity.

Age 15 years—Twenty percent of all individuals susceptible to diphtheria and showed no immunity.

Three-Patch Quilt

By Laura Wheeler

Women today are turning to quilting as a hobby that fascinates and is so serviceable, too. This three patch quilt, Whirlaway, is easy even for a beginner. Pattern 223 contains accurate pattern pieces; diagram of block, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing; yardages; diagram of quilt.

Send eleven cents in coins for this pattern to The Cumberland News Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

Age 30 years—In city dwellers 5 to 10 percent susceptible; in rural districts as high as 40 percent susceptible.

Immunity in Contracts

This increasing immunity is acquired either by having the disease, or by contacts with carriers—playmates, parents, companions—so that you engulf a few germs from time to time and kill them off, thus conditioning your cells to produce antitoxin. Notice how much less protection rural dwellers get; they live where there are few contacts, few carriers.

Questions and Answers

I. S.: I saw in the paper something about Bulgarian belladonna root in the treatment of Parkinson's disease. Where do I get it, and how much do I take?

Answer: Parkinson's disease, or the tremor known as paralysis agitans, has been treated by belladonna for many years. In 1927 a Bulgarian botanist claimed the Bulgarian belladonna root was better than any other and reported a number of cases who obtained astonishing relief. Since then it has been shown that the American root is just as good if properly prepared. But you don't get it, and you don't decide how much you take, because it has many dangerous actions and should be given only under the direction of a physician.

E. H. L.—What is the cause of swollen ankle and black and blue circulation? Is lamb wool and bandage good for same?

Answer: If it is in only one ankle, it probably is varicose veins. Lamb wool and bandage afford temporary relief.

The United States uses about 1,000 tons of paper a year in the manufacture of paper currency.

The Nickel and the Silver Subsidy

IT IS REMARKABLE, but none-the-less expected on the part of informed persons, how some of the old-established laws of economics and the like bob up to interfere with the efforts of present day planners.

There is the case of the humble nickel, or five-cent piece, for instance. Plans have been abandoned to make it half of silver and half of copper in place of one-quarter silver and three-quarters copper in order to conserve copper, which is especially needed for wartime uses.

Originally, the quantity of silver in the nickel would have given the coin an intrinsic value of about four cents in accordance with the universal practice, based on the principle of Gresham's law, of keeping the real value of all token money at less than its face value. But the plan was based on the market price of imported silver, then only thirty-five cents an ounce, and now the government, in pursuance of its crazy silver subsidy policy, pays 71.11 cents an ounce. Since foreign silver is practically unavailable because of wartime shipping conditions, the metal is at such a premium that the proposed five-cent piece would be worth much more than its face value. Hence, it would be melted down, sold at a profit and promptly driven out of circulation.

So we see that the government policy of handing an unconscionable subsidy to the silver senators and the silver producers is depriving the war program of some needed metal, not only copper but also silver, which is being bought and stored in government vaults when it is vitally needed both for implements of war and for industrial purposes comprising part of the domestic economy needed to support the war economy.

It may well be wondered how the patriotism of the silver crowd stacks up against this sort of thing.

Taxes Piled Upon Taxes

AN ARTICLE titled "A View of War Finances," which appears in the bulletin of the National Tax Association, calls attention to a vexatious problem which is going to have to be met some day, but which seems to be causing no particular concern at present.

The article points out that "there is much to the argument that the federal government proposals for added revenue are unimpractical of the requirements of the state and proceed on the theory that the war should be financed out of whatever sources of revenue can be readily seized."

The observation is true, but censure should not be limited to the federal government. The present system of overlapping taxes is the fault of all governmental agencies. Not one of them—the federal government last of all—has made the slightest attempt to put the nation's tax structure on anything resembling a sound footing. In a twentieth century civilization there still operates a taxation policy that should have been abandoned in the Middle Ages. And the policy is still operative because those who levy taxes follow one rule—"grab all you can wherever you can."

The result has been that taxes have been piled on taxes. And for each tax there is a collecting agency, the cost of which eats up the revenue. There has never been a clear-cut attempt to integrate new taxes with the existing taxes, just as there has never been a move to eliminate some of the senseless taxes. There should be a complete overhauling of theories about taxes. Out of this should come a sensible tax program with the objective of obtaining as much revenue as is needed by the several governmental units without waste or injustice.

Secretary Knox Tells the Facts

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY FRANK KNOX has been overly optimistic in the opinion of many persons. He has been criticized for asserting that the submarine menace was being licked, whereas ship sinkings continued to grow. Now it appears that Mr. Knox is giving the citizens some straight-from-the-shoulder information on just how difficult this war is going to become before victory is achieved.

In addressing 18,000 shipyard workers at Kearney, N. J., recently, Secretary Knox said that "a bloody trail" through new "Valley Forges" lies ahead. Warning that the American people will have to make such sacrifices as they have never heard of in their lives, he asserted:

"Whether you like it or not, you're going to feel it from top to bottom. You can't conduct a war all around the world without feeling the pain of sacrifices and sacrifices and sacrifices."

And then presenting a picture of the Valley Forge of 1777, he added that "one thing is sure. At the end of the bloody trail through those Valley Forges there will be a Yorktown where the enemy will surrender."

No one should now accuse Secretary Knox of being a pessimist regarding the war. His latest address places him in line with millions of Americans who, well informed on the progress of the conflict, have known for months that a war of the kind in which the nation is engaged today is no pushover.

War Savings Bonds And Taxation

WHILE patriotic duty may be the chief inducement for citizens to buy the War stamps and bonds, it may be wondered whether many of them grasp a bit of individual benefit in such purchase aside from the profit to be accrued from the investment.

That individual benefit has to do with heavy war taxes all will be obliged to pay. The connection here may not be direct but it exists. It lies in the fact that the federal Treasury department is obliged to raise the great sums of money necessary for prosecution of the war as well as to carry on government necessarily expanded by reason of the war.

In addition to the ordinary revenues, the money must come from taxation and, in order to keep that from being too burdensome, and also in order to supply the need in excess of tax yields, the plan of raising it through the War stamps and bonds was devised. Now, if the bond and stamp sales fall below estimates, it can be seen that the Treasury department will be obliged to fill the gap by other means, which would most likely be still heavier taxes.

Thus, by purchasing the War stamps and bonds, the individual taxpayer will be helping to decrease his wartime tax load. At the same time he will be storing up something for the future and realizing a profit upon his investment.

Tax Bill Tactics Arouse Suspicion

ACCORDING TO the schedule laid down by the politics-as-usual crowd in Washington, the Senate is supposed to tinker with the new tax bill for several weeks and then hand it over to a joint committee, which will nurse it along until after the election.

Citizens who are now looking over the qualifications of those who are seeking to represent them in Congress should keep this in mind.

Everybody appreciates the fact that taxes must be heavy on account of the vast war program and everybody is willing to pay his just share of them. Why, then, should the present Congress scheme and dally about the new tax bill? Evidently its present members realize that the measure, unless it can be radically changed, will arouse a storm of popular dissatisfaction; and their action arouses suspicion that the obvious changes will not be made, or will be made in an unsatisfactory manner.

Certainly these tactics about the tax measure suggest that representatives should be sent to Congress who will look into taxes with more regard to the national welfare and less regard for personal political fences.

Reports of shortages in the United States confirm Hitler's fears that the nation's vast resources of raw materials are being converted rapidly into planes, guns, tanks and ships.

The nice thing about the coming second front is that while its location-to-be is our wonder, it's Hitler's worry.

Magic Everywhere

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I've been reading a book on secrets of magic—and now I know how some of the tricks are performed.

Marshall Maslin

When the magician asks me to pick a card from the deck and then tells me what card it was, I know how he did it.

I know how he changes the spots on cards, produces rabbits from a hat, makes cigarettes vanish in the air. . . . When he saws a woman in two, makes a girl disappear from a cabinet or the man go through a mirror—I know exactly how he does it and if I want to be smart and explain it to you, I could!

He's fooling me but I know his secrets. He has trick slates, trick tubes, trick decks of cards. I can't see how he does the things he does, but know he isn't doing what he says he is. His hand is quicker than my eye, but nevertheless it's "just a trick."

When he puts a girl in a box and sticks swords through in all directions, then opens the front of the box and shows us that she isn't there, I know exactly how that's done. She is there in a little partition at the back of the box, but mirrors have made me think she's not there at all.

That book I've read told me all about it—I know HOW he does the tricks but I could never do them myself. My fingers aren't clever enough, my mind isn't fast enough, I lack the experience. And, furthermore, I haven't the wish to be a magician.

That's how it is with many many things. We know how they are done but we can't do them. We know how to make money, but we can't do it. We know how other people become successes, but we aren't. One young lady sees just how another, no prettier, attracts the boys—but she can't quite manage the trick. A shy fellow can tell you just how the other fellow became so popular, but HE can't do it.

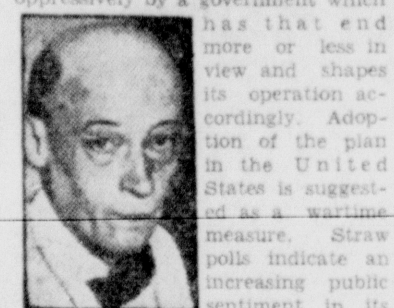

There's magic everywhere in this world, but few of us know how to make it. We see poor people getting happiness out of common things, we see fine women loving most ordinary men, we see deaf men like Edison becoming great inventors, we see average fellows doing incredibly brave things in peace and in war, we see wonders happening all around us—and we can tell you HOW they happen, but we can't tell you any more than that. We have all, somewhere, read a book of magic and received a hint about the mystery of life—and that's all we know about it.

Life is "just a trick"—but what a great trick it is!

Stewart Praises Argentine System Of Identification

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—A public identification system can be utilized oppressively by a government which has that end more or less in view and shapes its operation accordingly.

Charles P. Stewart favors, no doubt mainly for the reason that the great majority of us ardently believe in the idea of spotting enemy agents and saboteurs as effectively as possible, and intern them "for the duration."

Formidable Objection

Nevertheless there also is formidable objection to it, on the ground that it's a tyrannical sort of procedure, an institution that despotisms naturally are addicted to, but that free peoples just as naturally frown on.

Well, it's true that oppressively-run countries, like czarist Russia kept their populations strictly booked, and for no very commendable reasons.

It unquestionably is a handy method for a bad type of officialdom to persecute perfectly good citizens as well as to keep tab on their ideas of disloyalists and ordinarily assorted criminals. The regulations' merits depend largely upon the fashion of their application by the folk in charge of them.

There is a distinction, though, between a compulsory and a merely voluntary public identification system.

The former certainly is open to a certain amount of abuse.

A Convenience

The latter is an out-and-out convenience.

I have had experience with the compulsory kind in several different old world countries. It never happened to catch me off base, but it always rather fretted me, as it infringes on my personal rights, if only slightly so. I felt, indeed, that, as a visiting alien, it behooved me to acquiesce gracefully in local rules. All the same I had my personal opinion that they and modern civilization could not prevail coincidentally.

But, as previously remarked, public identification can be a "service" to the identifyee. I do not believe the public has widely thought of that.

You do not have to register as a resident of the Argentine Republic. Maybe you do not have to so register in any of the Latin-American republics, but I will speak for Argentina. Anyway, you did not have to when I hit the area in World War No. 1's days.

Ticket of Identity

Yet you COULD register. Having done so, you received what was known as a "Cedula de Identidad" otherwise a "Ticket of Identity."

It governmentally guaranteed whom you were.

Suppose you were traveling around a bit, calling in at various Latin American cities and occasionally wanting to get a check cashed at one of them. That ticket was conclusive at any bank teller desk.

As I have said, you did not have to have it.

You wanted it, though. It contained your photo and your signature and your thumb-print and all the dope concerning you—unmistakably.

To get one you called in at the home town's police department.

Having established your credentials—and they were darned particular as to that—you got your ticket.

Lot of Formalities

But it took about two weeks to do it. There were a lot of formalities.

Still you could expedite them.

If you sugared the right functionaries, they would hustle the thing along—up to twenty-four hours, perhaps.

I don't argue that this acceleration

NOT SO MUCH FIRST COST AS HONORABLE UPKEEP

Many Companies Will Face Bankruptcy Under Proposed Taxes, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Many companies—their exact number is unknown — face bankruptcy and their employees will be thrown out of work and the investors will lose heavily unless the Senate through the pending tax bill and then the House affords some relief to corporations whose debt payments and commitments actually will exceed their net income after taxes.

Company executives do not like to reveal their financial affairs or possible embarrassments to the public so a bouquet is due the Eucusta paper corporation for courage in having revealed its plight to the Senate finance committee.

The story is illustrative of the way the foresight and ingenuity of American enterprise can be penalized by a thoughtlessly drafted tax bill and the objective—to get revenue—absolutely defeated too.

For if the present tax bill before the Senate is passed, here is a case in which a company would face bankruptcy. The business would be ruined and the treasury wouldn't in the end get a cent of revenue. Here is the reason:

Income below Debt

The company in question estimates its profit for 1942 at about $588,000 before taxes. It estimates its tax liability under the pending bill at about $4,857,000. This leaves a net income of $729,000.

But the company borrowed $9,200,000 beginning in 1939 and agreed with various creditors to pay $1,175,000 in 1942 and a similar sum in 1943, and the average curtailment for the next five years is $1,235,000 per year.

How can a company with a net income of $729,000 pay annual installments of $1,235,000? Either the company goes out of business and the treasury loses all of that imaginary $4,857,000 or else some provision must be made whereby the treasury can get some revenue and the company can continue to live.

The Eucusta Paper Corporation makes cigarette papers. Until 1939, it was dependent upon a French mill. Between 1939 and 1939, Harry H. Straus, its organizer, foresaw difficulties abroad and engaged chemists and research experts and perfected an American process which by 1938 proved satisfactory. Plants were erected in North Carolina beginning in 1938 and manufacturing began in 1939.

Loan for Plants

The new company of course had no record of earnings to use as a base for exceptions from heavy taxes and its invested capital base was small since it didn't sell stock but borrowed its funds. The big loan was made to pay for plants. The creditors foresaw their loan being repaid out of $5,000,000 or more net earnings each year. It looked like a safe loan.

But now the treasury comes along and in effect demands a ninety per cent excess profits tax as well as a forty-five per cent normal tax and the liability of the Eucusta Paper Corporation for taxes is estimated at $4,857,000 for 1942 which cuts out all possibility of paying the creditors what they anticipated. It will be argued by House of Representatives members who passed the bill that they provided relief sections. But these provisions are vague and do not specify how much relief will be granted. Also a determination of exact tax liability will occur only after the tax year is ended. In fact a lot of time may elapse before the company knows whether it can pay its creditors who, of course, are in a position in the meantime to foreclose the company.

Relief Plans Suggested

The suggestion made by the Eucusta Paper Corporation representative at the Senate Finance committee hearings the other day was that the excess profits tax be reduced to eighty per cent or that a limitation be imposed whereby the aggregate of excess profits and normal and surtaxes which any corporation shall be required to pay shall not exceed seventy per cent of its income before taxes.

Another suggestion is that there is to be a partial refund of taxes after the war, debtor corporations may be permitted to use it now by applying to their debts annually all amounts over and above an eighty per cent excess profits tax.

"Where would the American cigarette industry be now with supplies from France cut off, if you didn't develop this process?" asked Senator Bailey, of North Carolina, Democrat. "There wouldn't be any," Mr. Straus replied.

Little Fellows Worse Off.

The Eucusta case emphasizes the principle but it does not touch the dilemma of many small corporations which not only cannot possibly refinance their debts but cannot get new money for expansion unless the Treasury recognizes that it must not kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

If the Treasury wants to be an eighty per cent partner in the profits of American enterprise it must make sure the regaining twenty per cent of revenue will be enough to keep the company alive and in the revenue-producing group. Unfortunately, Treasury officials have not indicated that they have as yet seen this realistic side of taxation and it is regrettable that when the bill was before the House something of a practicable relief measure was not insisted upon instead of expecting the Senate to bear the full responsibility for giving American business a chance to survive.

Russian Situation Not Yet Hopeless, Paul Mallon Says

PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The Russian situation does not look too bad. It is dangerous, discouraging yet far from disastrous, so far.

Events are shaping up toward a winter battle line in the south, running roughly along the top of the Caucasus mountains, across the vital oil regions. This would mean that the Axis may keep the richest and best oil producing area south of the mountains, out of Nazi hands for another winter.

If they can hold the Baku area, which more than fifty percent of all Russian oil has been produced, they will not consider this a very unusual campaign, when measured against their advance hopes.

Hitler has seized the Maikop fields, and so doubt soon will get Grozny, the northern side of the mountain range. The Reds have announced that the Maikop wells have been destroyed, which only means that they will probably take Hitler six months to restore the production system and get oil from them.

No doubt the Reds will similarly "destroy" the Grozny producing area now at Hitler's reaching fingertips.

Oil for Winter

If they can hold the excellent natural barrier of the protective Baku mountains, it may not be them much good, as far as supplying their own oil needs, but they will at least keep its vital prize for six months. The home supply has been estimated sufficient to carry them through the winter.

The Black Sea will be lost to them but they have some shipping in the Caspian, which will enable them to communicate with the main front. It would be too dangerous a route, and cannot be easily used, but we can get some supplies and planes in to them through Iran. Furthermore, there is at least one arms factory behind that line.

The most decisive action on this front therefore is yet to be determined, and the Russian cause is not without hope. The army of the southern commander Timoshenko is still intact, has merely been retreating, and not attempting to make a major stand north of the mountains, and therefore should be able to do this job which is cut out for it.

Winter Due Soon

Winter should start closing down on the northern front, above the parallel of Moscow, within ten days. Snow there generally starts around Labor day.

A heavy rainy season, which will impede mechanical activities generally, sets in south of Moscow about the latter part of September and October, and continues in varying degrees until winter hardens the terrain.

On this central front, the Russians are assuming a defensive position, which they hope to maintain through the winter, along the excellent natural line of the Volga and part of the Don.

Hitler has just now started some unexpected offensive thrusts around Voronezh to break this Don line at the center. He may soon go hard after Leningrad and Moscow again, but so far, north of Voronezh neither side has had enough strength to make any appreciable gain in the other.

Loss of Cities Not Fatal

The layout of the whole front now is such that the Reds could lose both Leningrad and Moscow and not have to give in—if they could hold the Caucasus mountains and the Volga-Don line.

If Hitler fails to get Stalingrad he will doubt cut southeastward, along the east bank of the Volga to Astrakhan, but no one expects him to go across the deep, safe line of that mighty river before the snow flies there, also.

Food may become Stalin's worst enemy this winter. Unprecedented bumper crops have been raised this summer in all unoccupied areas of Russia, but the total volume of the production naturally falls short of making up the loss of the rich Ukraine field to the Germans. True also, we can hope to get much in the form of grain from the Arctic ocean, an ice-free port throughout the winter, but German bombings, and the traffic jams on the single railroad southward to Moscow, have made it an inadequate base. No others were useable to any great extent.

Japs May Strike

Nothing has been reported concerning Japanese intentions in Siberia, since they concentrated heavy forces on the Manchukuo border a month ago. They may strike at any minute and close that Pacific port, which has not been of great use anyway, a view of the long railroad haul from there to the European battlefield.

If coming events to the battle during the next few weeks will only bear out these modest hopes, you will find the summer campaign has not really developed much beyond what was expected and prophesied last spring in this spot, namely, that the Nazis would get a lot more territory but not get the Russian armies.

Mark's Wife

by MARIE BLIZARD

SYNOPSIS
BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband dies. Her only friend in the small town of South Wintridge, where she lives, is Dr. TONY BRADSHAW, a young physician. Owner of the town's only big business is TOM KILCRAN, whose daughter, FAMELA, and wife, CLARE, are haughty, cold and selfish.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
TOM KILCRAN looked out of the wide window of his office, that ran across the second front floor of the Kilcran building, and saw his daughter crossing the street. Then his glance returned to the younger man sitting at the other side of his desk.

"As far as I can see, Dr. Bradshaw," he said coolly, "the Harrison case is routine. It will be taken care of through the usual insurance channels."

Tony Bradshaw said quietly, "I've been trying to tell you that this is not a routine case, Mr. Kilcran. It's a blatant warning of similar cases that we can't refuse to see coming up. When Mulvey died, I had an idea of what was up. It was a pretty good lunch when Delavan was stricken, and now Harrison's case convinces me. There'll be more like Harrison."

"I think you're an alarmist, Bradshaw. You're asking for something and I don't know what. I've taken your word—one man's word—for it that Harrison is going to die as the result of working with dangerous chemicals. The mills will make every possible restitution. Since you told me this, I've taken every precaution to protect the workmen in the dyeing shop with preventive methods. What else do you want?"

"They need more than preventive methods. There is no such thing as absolute isolation from danger as long as there is any exposure to the solution. When the first signs appear, the thing can be arrested, but in order to do this, the men must be regularly watched by clinical check-ups."

Kilcran sighed patiently. "You're paid to do that. Why bring the matter to me?"

A flush came up into the tired face of the doctor. "That's what I'm trying to—my end of it," he said shortly, "but I'm not a hospital and I haven't the laboratory equipment. No one man has."

"That's your lookout."

"Is it, Kilcran? Or are you morally responsible?"

It was the mill owner's turn to flush. He asked, "What would you have me do?"

"Build a proper hospital for this town. The nearest one is 40 miles away."

Kilcran smiled dryly, but he made no answer except to draw a pile of papers toward him indicating the interview was over.

Bradshaw leaned across the desk. "Mr. Kilcran, you're the one man who can and should do this. It wouldn't cost you more than $150,000 to build, equip and staff a 50-bed hospital. This is a job that calls for trained men, technicians, research workers. In the long run it'll cost you less than . . ."

Kilcran's voice cut across him smoothly. "Where do you come in on this, Bradshaw?"

The doctor's eyes flamed dangerously, but no hint of what he was thinking showed in his voice when he answered:

"I'm responsible for the lives of thousands of men who work for you."

"You've been doing a pretty good job. But, Bradshaw, your medical men are all alike today. Your father took care of our men without fancy scientific methods and test-tubes and all that fol-de-rol."

"He would have changed his methods just the same as you've changed yours. Do you think he would have sat by and seen men die, knowing the reason they died, and that more will, without demanding the help they need? Look here, sir. You introduced the new dyeing process six months ago. Since that time, one man has died. Another might have died if Dr. Prescott hadn't caught the thing in time. In three months, Harrison will be dead. What about the rest of them? I'll do all I can. But medicine and operations won't save them when the poison has eaten too far."

They collided as each took a step forward.

Kilcran played with a paperweight on his desk, smiling. "You fellows . . ."

"Demand laboratories where we can do a job of clinical pathology, scientific observation, preventive medicine. Every one of those men in the dye works should have a monthly examination by trained men. Do you want another Harrison? Another Mulvey?"

Kilcran said crisply, "This is the second time you've mentioned Mulvey, Bradshaw. You've no proof that he died as the result of chemical poisoning. He'd been out of the plant for three months on a generous pension."

"I know how and why he died as well as I know why I'm sitting here. . . . He didn't live long enough to enjoy that pension, which wasn't your fault. But I'm warning you that it will be your fault if one more man goes the same way."

"Warning me?" Kilcran's voice rose angrily. "You've a hospital in the factory. Do what you can with that."

"Hospital! Four beds a hospital? Bandages, hot water bottles, aspirin and a gallon of caron oil for equipment?"

"Make what you can of it, Doctor. . . . Good morning."

The mill owner rose and without another look at the doctor went to the door of his secretary's office and opened it, saying, "If my daughter is waiting, send her up."

At that moment Pamela was mounting the stairs. She came to the top step as her father's door opened violently and Tony Bradshaw came out with eyes too angry to see her.

They collided as each took a step forward.

She had a quick impression of a ruggedly good-looking face, a pair of broad shoulders in tweed and strong brown hands. The tweed smelled of heather and tobacco and antiseptic. The face above it was first furious and then apologetic.

"Sorry," he murmured, tipped his hat and was gone.

She looked after him for a moment, made a funny little face and opened the door to her father's office.

"What's the matter with him?" she asked, jerking her head toward the outer side of the door.

"Nothing. He won't get over. Everybody in this town thinks I'm made of money. . . . What brings you downtown this morning, Pam?"

"Any excuse, Tom, for something to do. I thought we might drive over to Medbury for lunch. There's a fairly good inn over there."

"Sorry, I can't get away. . . . Having a hard time amusing yourself, baby?"

Pamela sat on the small of her back in the chair Tony Bradshaw had vacated and shrugged her shoulders. "Not too bad. But this certainly isn't an exciting town. It's too late for golf and too early for winter stuff. Besides, there's no one to do anything with."

"You ought to get over to Wintbridge. There's a young crowd . . ."

"I know," she said wearily. "But the men are all married and their wives are all jealous. If I could find one unmarried man, I wouldn't care if he had cauliflower ears. . . . Mother's having a gang up for the week-end. Something amusing may turn up."

Radio Program Will Tell of War Plant Hijacking

Features in Variety Are Scheduled by Networks

By RAY PEACOCK

New York, Aug. 18. — With a script based on the raiding of wartime industrial plants for skilled workers, the Mr. District Attorney program over NBC Wednesday at 9:30 p. m. offers interesting possibilities on a day otherwise stamped with routine radio offerings. Co-authors of "The Case of the Hijacked Workers" are Jerry Devine and Ed Byron.

Some of the MBS Pass in Review programs from Fort Sheridan, Ill., will be broadcast Wednesday at 9:30 p. m. The post's band and dance orchestra will be featured.

Pert Kelton, who scored a personal success in the Broadway play, "Guest in the House," which closed recently after a long run, will be a guest of Nellie Revell Wednesday over NBC at 12:30 p. m. Pert, now mistress of ceremonies on the Dough-Re-Mi program, will discuss early phases of her career and radio, film and stage comedy technique.

Address by Landis

Dean James D. Landis, head of the Office of Civilian Defense, will speak before a meeting of the Interstate Peace Officers Association in Jacksonville, Fla., Wednesday, to be broadcast by MBS at 12:30 p. m. Another speaker Wednesday will be Commander David C. Patterson, United States Third naval District, on the NBC Men of the Sea program at 3:30 p. m.

A new war song with an intriguing title will be introduced by Kay Kyser Wednesday over NBC at 10:00. Written by Frank Loesser, the title purportedly quotes a military chaplain in the Far East, who said: "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition."

The CBS Great Moments of Music Wednesday at 10:00 p. m. will offer selections from Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet."

Endeavor Group Plans Campfire Service Aug. 30

Local Organization Will Have Program in Constitution Park

A Christian Endeavor Campfire service will be held at 9 p. m., August 30, in Constitution park. Due to the rubber and gasoline situation the Prosborg group will hold a campfire service simultaneously in Prosborg. The plans were announced by the campfire committee at the Christian Endeavor meeting Monday evening at Melvin Chapel, Oldtown road.

J. O. Fier President

J. Orville Fier presided at the business session and received reports on the various types of weekly meetings being held on week days during August; on the contributions being given to the state union and various committee activities throughout the county.

The reports were given by the following societies: Junior, Intermediate and Senior, of First Congregational, Prosborg; Intermediate and Senior, Salem Reformed, Prosborg; Senior, Zion Reformed, city; Intermediate and Senior, First Brethren, city; Senior, First Christian, city; Intermediate and Senior, Calvary Evangelical, city.

Miss Margaret Doak, vice president of the county union, led the devotional services which consisted of group singing, Scripture reading and prayer.

Following the business session, Lester B. Case, Lancaster, Pa., field secretary for Maryland, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, conducted an open forum on Christian Endeavor work. This part of the program was received enthusiastically by the members, who declared that they had received a great deal of help from it.

Roy Bragg Speaks

Roy Bragg, Baltimore, former Christian Endeavor worker, and now connected with the Allied Youth explained that his work dealing with fighting of alcoholism among youth is directed chiefly through the schools and colleges.

Fier announced that anyone wishing to attend the Officers' Retreat to be held August 28, 29 and 30 at Braddock heights should contact him. Tentative plans for the retreat were discussed at the meeting, Monday evening, which closed with a song period led by Case.

The Women's Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Co-operative Traffic Program organized a Glee Club yesterday at its annual picnic in Constitution park. The club under the direction of Mrs. Thomas C. Speake is composed of sixteen members and will begin rehearsals the middle of September.

Mrs. Vada Barnard, president of the club and chairman of the picnic, announced the dates of the meetings of the Health for Victory clubs. The wives of the men from the Back shop will meet at 2:30 o'clock August 25 at the Potomac Edison Home Service room, Union station, of the Round house, August 27 and the Bolt and Forge August 28.

Various contests featured the entertainment from 2 to 5:30 o'clock when a chicken supper was served members and their friends.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. D. O. Owens, winner of the "egg and spoon race"; Mrs. Alva Davis, "balloon race"; Mrs. Earl Gross and Mrs. D. O. Owens, the "three legged race"; Mrs. Fannie Robinson, "pin race"; Mrs. Arthur Fisher, "fat women race"; Mrs. Earl Gross won the forfeit; Mrs. Alva Davis, "sack race"; and Mrs. Thomas C. Speake, "thin women race".

Dancing, games and community singing, led by Mrs. Alec King formed the entertainment following dinner. Seventy-three persons attended the affair.

Will Attend Dinner

The Board of Governors of the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club and their wives will attend a 6 o'clock dinner this evening at the club.

The ladies will play cards while their husbands attend the board meeting following the dinner.

War's Effect on Paint Business Will Be Told At Meeting of Lions

Eric B. Harrison, district sales manager of the Sherwin Williams Paint Company, of Pittsburgh, will be the principal speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Lions Club today at 12:15 p. m. in the Central Y.M.C.A.

The topic of Harrison's talk will be "How the War Has Affected the Paint Business and the Importance of Paint to Our Armed Forces."

Ralph H. Evans, Miss Bertha Monroe and Miss Bernice DelaGrange are the committee in charge of arrangements.

Two Divorce Suits Entered in Circuit Court Yesterday

Two divorce suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Lillie C. Wilson filed suit for divorce from Edward Ralph Wilson. The couple married in Cumberland June 5, 1920 and separated January 2, 1937. There are two grown children, both independent.

Edna R. Dorsey asks divorce from Charles P. Dorsey. The couple married here March 11, 1940 and separated March 11, 1942. There are no children.

Cards Will Feature Entertainment Preceding Dinner Sept. 25

The annual fall banquet of the Ladies Shrine Club will be held at 6 o'clock, September 25, at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Cards will feature the afternoon's entertainment with play beginning at 2:30 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded for bridge, 500 and dominoes.

Mrs. James Orr is chairman of the dinner and is being assisted with the arrangements by Mrs. Morris Robinson, Mrs. Thomas Dunlap, Mrs. Fred Flurschütz, Mrs. Clifton White and Mrs. Alvin Haller.

Child May Have Night Terrors Due to Dreams

Parents Should Awaken
Youngsters by Applying
Damp Cloth to Face

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Some children from 2 to 6, or older, have night terrors, crying or screaming out while apparently asleep. You may find the child's eyes wide open though he also seems to be in deep slumber. Later he may tell you of a horrible dream he had.

Go to the youngster so engulfed with terror. Awaken him. A good way is to apply a cold, damp sponge or cloth to his face or hands. Next day have your doctor see this child. Be sure the doctor examines his nose, throat and ears, checks on his digestive state and diet and makes the examination thorough. There may be a physical cause that only a doctor can correct. If physical causes are ruled out by the doctor, your job will be to work on the child, yourself, and the whole family atmosphere.

Fears and Anxieties
It may not be easy to protect this child from fear stimulation by other children and adults in the community. The war news, talk about war and prevailing anxieties over it tend to increase fears and anxieties in the growing child. Be cautious about radio programs, family conversation and attitudes in the child's presence.

See that the youngster does not grow too weary and excited by day. Remember that some sensitive children can be over-stimulated. Get him out of doors with other children about his age, practically daily but not for too long a time. Require of him quiet periods, especially for half an hour before the evening meal. Try to have a calm, quiet, happy mealtime with soft voices and without emotional disturbance over his eating.

Less Violent Play

Direct him more to building with blocks, coloring, drawing, cutting and pasting, sawing and driving nails and making things with tools.

If there is another child in the family, look into the possibilities of jealousy as a contributing factor, making sure the night-terror child feels he is loved and worthy. Father as well as mother should minister to his needs, read to him, play with him and care for him at night. Try to reduce punishments and make the few that seem necessary more effective. Be generous with affection and worthy approvals. Celebrate successes in this child. Try to get more rest and recreation yourself so you can be more relaxed and serene in his presence.

Perhaps you would like to read further on this problem. Let me send you a copy of my special bulletin on the nervous child, without cost to you. Just write me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. My bulletin on Jealousy is also available.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. You see your son of seven playing with a glass of water at the table. You warn him that if he spills it he will be punished. He spills it and is punished. Is there a better way?

A. Yes; when you see him playing with the glass of water, either divert his interest or tell him to put it. In case he does not then obligingly punish him effectively.

Tired of hearing salvage volunteers complain that transportation was bottlenecking their efforts, two Goldboro, N. C., housewives borrowed a neighbor's truck and collected more than two tons of scrap metal in a single day.

May Open Camps For Merchant Seamen

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 18 (AP)—Governor O'Connor announced that he will take immediate steps to ascertain from the department of forts and parks what sites might be available in the state for the establishment of rest camp facilities for merchant seamen.

The announcement came after a meeting in the governor's office attended by James Drury, Baltimore branch representative of the National Maritime Union of America, and Paul E. Burke, of the Baltimore District Council of Defense.

In requesting the governor's aid in the establishment of the camp facilities, Drury said there was a need for proper arrangements for rest for seamen who had completed long and arduous voyages.

Drury explained the men did not want charity, because the majority were possessed of some means. However, he added, the hardships and privations which they had endured in submarine-infested waters, would justify the state's making available the facilities.

Belated Wedding Ring Makes Girl Forget Sorrows

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The new picture weekly, "Tab," in which I read a moving story of unmarried girls who are expectant mothers, places the number of these at 75,000 in the United States at the present time. The figure does not seem too high, for I have had so many letters from unhappy girls in this category.

In many cases their parents seem more callous to their condition than strangers. Take the case of Mary X. She wrote she'd been turned out of her home by her father who thundered he'd have none of her evil example around to corrupt her younger sisters.

So Mary, aged 18, sat on park benches when the weather was good, and otherwise took refuge in railroad stations and subways in New York. She had worked in a factory and the girls with whom she worked proved to be real friends. They lent her small sums, and they called it that too, as a save-face. And one of them shared a hall bedroom with her at night. The people with whom the friend lodged didn't want a hall bedroom shared by a girl who washed her clothes in the bath-tub. They said things in Mary's hearing, but an extra dollar quieted them.

Soldier Willing To Do Part
This friend urged her to write to me, having sent letters from service men and their women folk in the Beatrice Fairfax column. Mary told me the young soldier she loved had been sent to a distant post and the question of a furlough, so that he could come back and do the right thing by Mary, was out of the question. There was also the matter of railroad fare which he'd have to pay out of his own pocket. Frankly he didn't have the money, but he was willing to do his part.

A few days later I got another letter from Mary saying she had walked across Brooklyn bridge trying to get up courage to jump. She signed her letter "Howard."

I wired Mary to hold on and wrote her she had no right to take her life; it belonged to her unborn child. Then I got busy with the powers that be in Washington. In the United States Army we have not only chaplains who are there to make the boys realize stars still shine above the gutters, but we have a miracle man known as the special services officer. He does a magnificent job of straightening out tangles of all sorts for the boys, and Uncle Sam stands back of him.

The special services officer sent for Mary's soldier. The youngster—aged 23—wanted to do the right thing but he couldn't get a furlough and he hadn't the money for railroad fare. Well, could Mary come out to the post and be married by the chaplain?

How the necessary amount for her expenses was raised, I can't detail. No one person gave all, or half or a quarter, but her friends made small contributions and there was a little left over for the necessities of travel. And so they were married by the chaplain at the post. Now, of course, Mary is entitled to a pay allotment.

Never in all the years I've conducted this column have I ever had such a joyous letter as the one that came from Mary and began: "Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I'm writing you with a wedding ring on my finger, and am so happy — — —"

O'Connor Asked What State Will Spend

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18 (AP)—Governor O'Connor has been asked just how much the state intended to spend next year on ordinary peacetime government.

The Maryland Public Expenditure Council, in a letter sent by its president, Harry S. Middendorf, to O'Connor said that "your recently announced intention to reduce the income tax is most gratifying to the taxpayers of Maryland.

"We are also grateful that you have acceded to the wishes of the people, expressed at the last session of the general assembly, to reduce state expenditures.

"While this is most encouraging," the letter continued, "we still are concerned with the question of how much the state intends to spend next year on ordinary peacetime government — on activities made necessary by the war and on the state's highway department."

Dr. John E. Pomfret Named President of William and Mary

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Aug. 18 (AP)—Dr. John Edwin Pomfret

dean of the Senior College of Arts and Sciences and of the graduate school of Vanderbilt University has been elected president of the College of William and Mary, second oldest college in the United States, by the William and Mary board.

Dr. Pomfret will succeed John Stewart Bryan of Richmond, who has filled the office for the past eight years and who gave his resignation to the board in April to take effect not later than Jan. 1. J. Gordon Bohannon of Petersburg, rector of the Board of Visitors, said only one ballot was taken and that no other candidate was placed in nomination. The election was unanimous and Dr. Pomfret accepted when called by the board after his election. He will be the twenty-first president of the college since its foundation in 1693.

May Start Letter Soon

If sufficient names are received, it is proposed to send the first letter by September 1.

In planning the project, the letter league has taken into consideration the fact that other groups have discussed something of this nature, and that local newspapers publish a weekly letter for service men. However, the air V mail letter in itself is unique because of the method provided by the postal department for its use.

First the letter must be written or typed on a form provided by the postal department, and it can be sent only to men in service outside the Continental United States.

Next, it is necessarily censored and then photographed on a miniature negative. The negative which takes up very little space is then sent in the most expeditious form of transportation available. The negative is then printed for delivery to the soldier.

The original form is destroyed after the film has reached its destination.

in the State Teachers' Retirement System and such teachers are advised to report to the office of the board of education to fill in the necessary forms not later than Saturday, September 12.

Kopp also called attention to the requirements of a birth certificate for beginning children and of vaccination certificates. As announced a year ago, principals will not send children home if certificates are not presented the first day. Reasonable time will be allowed for the slow ones, but a final disposition of the matter, of course, should not be overlooked. The health department will co-operate in securing proper certificates.

If the gardener will cut off the heads of cabbage instead of pulling up the plants by the roots, new leaves will grow out shortly which are good for salad use.

Red Cross Home Service Workers To Meet Today

American Flag
Is Presented
Farrady PostCol. G. Milroy Mayer, Fort
Logan, Col., Honors
Frostburg Legion

FROSTBURG, Aug. 18.—Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, was presented a large American flag last evening, the gift of Col. G. Milroy Mayer, who is head of the quartermaster department at Fort Logan, Colo. The flag was presented by the post by Col. Mayer's brother, Carl F. Mayer, a member of the local post, and was accepted by Post Commander Griffith Lewis.

Following the presentation, it was announced that Farrady Post had collected 4,750 phonograph records in the recent drive. A report of the membership committee disclosed that the post has at present a membership of 250, which is one more than last year. Plans were completed for a rally in Mt. Savage Monday night, with addresses to be made by Legion members. Refreshments will be served.

The post is making plans for the annual installation of officers, which will take place following the state convention in Cumberland this month.

Arthur M. Norris, 303 Welsh Hill, is the new post commander. He has been a member of the post for twenty years and was the sponsor of the Sons of the Legion organized here last year. Norris was attached to the Seventh Trench Motor Battery, serving in France during World War No. 1.

Other officers named to serve with him are Charles Cole, first vice-commander; Joseph Carter, second; Olin Spiker, third; Anderson Green, secretary; Hugh Watson, treasurer; Griffith Lewis, historian; Roy Sleeman, chaplain, and Thomas McGann, sergeant-at-arms.

Delegates to the state convention are Hugh Watson, Frank Powers, Michael J. Byrnes, Earl S. Kerr, Daniel Miller, Earl Miller and S. W. Green; alternates are Joseph Brode, James Knepp, Joseph Durst, Charles Seggie, Roy Sleeman, Irvin Engle and Frank Garritano.

A son of the late William H. and Dianah (Thomas) Koch, this city, he is survived by his widow and a daughter, Margaret, both of Bridgeville, and a sister, Miss Kate Koch, this city, who left this afternoon to attend the funeral.

Mr. Koch, who left here about forty years ago, had been engaged in the delivery business at Bridgeville until his retirement. He was known to older Frostburgers as "Jason" Koch.

Mrs. Oscar Anthony Dies

Mrs. Annie Mouson Anthony, 64, widow of Oscar Anthony, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jack Allen, Cheverly, Md. Mrs. Anthony had resided in Frostburg until about six years ago. She was affiliated with the First Presbyterian church.

Surviving are one son, Harry West Loo street, and besides Mrs. Allen, another daughter, Mrs. George Biddington, Gambrills, Md., and three sisters, Mrs. Aleda Worthmiller, Mrs. Bessie Steinbaugh and Miss Hannah Mouson, and a brother, Jobe Mouson, all of Washington. She had three grandchildren.

The body will arrive at Hafer's funeral home tomorrow.

Flag Raising Planned

The flag raising and service tablet dedication in Zihlman, postponed from last week because of unfavorable weather, will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, in Zihlman community center.

The dedication of the tablet, containing the names of Zihlman's young men now serving with the armed forces of the United States, will be in charge of the Rev. Raymond W. Cooke, pastor of the Allegheny Methodist church.

The principal address will be delivered by A. Charles Stewart. Music will be furnished by the Arion Band under direction of R. Hilary Lancaster, William Eberly and his players and the mixed chorus of the Allegheny Methodist church. The singing squad of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, will fire a salute. The squad will be in charge of S. W. Green.

To Head Light Group

HARMAN COAL MINERS
VOTE TO CONTINUE
PROTEST WALKOUT

GRUNDY, Va., Aug. 18 (AP)—Miners at the Harman Coal Corporation entered the third week of their strike today after voting 650 to thirty-two to continue the walkout in protest to the transfer of two loading machines from the No. 3 mine to the No. 2 shaft.

The vote was taken after two members of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, Curtis Mundell and Frank D. Wilson, had appeared before the members of Harman Local Union 7025 in a special meeting and appealed to the men to return to their jobs.

The UMWA representatives were joined in their appeal by John Saxton of Norton, president of District 28. The officials urged the miners to withdraw their protests over the machines and to return to their jobs under the conditions that existed prior to the walkout on July 29.

The strikers claimed that the transfer of machinery would throw men out of work.

Theaters Today

"Magnificent Ambersons" To Open Run at Liberty

Bringing Booth Tarkington's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel of changing fortunes and shifting social conditions in a mid-west city to the screen in stirring fashion, "The Magnificent Ambersons," starting tomorrow at the Liberty, marks Orson Welles' second film production. A brilliant cast headed by Joseph Cotten, Dolores Costello and Tim Holt is featured in the offering which, produced, directed and scenarized Welles, is said to be an unusual and absorbing film in a totally different field from his earlier "Citizen Kane."

The plot deals with the growth of a little Indiana town, and what happens to it and to its inhabitants when the smoking factories of the Nineties replace the fields and orchards around it. Lavish settings, not only of the luxurious Amberson home but also comprising whole blocks and streets of the community at different stages of its development, feature this film made for RKO Radio, and add to its engrossing story. Many of the earliest "automobiles" extant were obtained and put into running order for these sequences, which are said to be among the most realistic ever photographed.

Rufe Davis Appears At Maryland Today

Rufe Davis, hillbilly comedian of stage, screen and radio, called the "one-man whirlwind of hilarity," has as much fun working as his audience does watching. He will appear in person at the Maryland today.

Rufe's imitations of barnyard and other noises—his masterpiece, a "hawg in a tater patch, three dogs and a farmer" have won him such fame and popularity that once he tied up Broadway traffic. When Rufe came out of the stage door of the theater where he was playing, he was surrounded by some of his youthful admirers, who immediately started to shout, "Go like a hawg, Rufe!" and Rufe went like a hawg. Then he went like a motor boat, an airplane, and assorted chickens. Then came the "hawg in a tater patch, three dogs and a farmer." This consists of cupping his hands to his mouth, barking in three keys, throwing in frightened grunts and interpolating the voice of the farmer yelling—"Git that hawg outa that tater patch!" And just for good measure, right in the middle of it, Rufe puts in a stirring, "Heigho-Silver!"

By this time the crowd had blocked the sidewalk and spilled over to the street and policeman began to hurry to the scene to break it up.

The foregoing antics are only a small part of Rufe's stock in trade. He can screw up his face and suddenly you are hearing the "Missouri Waltz" as the three Andrews sisters might feed it out. Then he can go like a saxophone, hot trumpet, automobile horn, streamlined train, fog horn, goat, squeaky shoes and Donald Duck. Not to mention a croquet game!

Walter Abel Prefers Roles with Variety

Walter Abel, says now he is quite happy about the roles he's been playing. There's variety in them. There was a time once when he was playing one district attorney part after another. He felt like a man condemned every time he stepped into a prosecutor's role. So back he went to the Broadway stage, where he did very well indeed. Hollywood put out an inviting hand again. It's all different now. The handsome star is playing all sorts of parts now. In "Hold Back the Dawn," he was an immigration official; in "Skylark," he was a comedy advertising official, and in "Arise My Love," he was a foreign news editor. Currently he is appearing in a leading role in the Paramount technicolor adventure romance, "Beyond the Blue Horizon," currently at the Strand theater, starring Dorothy Lamour in the cast.

Roy Rogers Western Coming to Embassy

A rousing adventure film, boasting the "tops" in blazing-gun action, gay romance, and tunefulness, is "Sons of the Pioneers," the Republic western starring Roy Rogers which opens tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

Roy turns in one of his best performances to date, and is capably supported by an excellent cast. The comedy is expertly delivered by George "Gabby" Hayes, while Maris Wrixon scores with her performance as the leading lady. Others coming in for a big share of the praise are Bradley Page, Hal Taliaferro, Forrest Taylor, and the members of the popular musical group, the Sons of the Pioneers—Bob Nolan, Pat Brady, Hugh Farr, Karl Farr, Tim Spencer, and Lloyd Perryman.

The picture deals with the fight which the citizens of the western town of Rogers City are waging against a ruthless gang of desperadoes who have been destroying the ranchers' property and killing their cattle. The secret leader of this gang is Frank Bennett (Bradley Page), one of the town's leading citizens. The region is rich in deposits of chromite and Bennett plans to bankrupt the ranchers and force them to sell out to him before they can learn of the presence of the valuable ore on their land.

Film Producer Acts In His Own Picture

When you see "Sullivan's Travels," Paramount's new comedy written and directed by Preston Sturges, you will see a hilarious scene in which a portrait of a mustachioed gentleman changes expression as the scene develops.

Coming today to the Garden theater, the new film stars Joel McCrea and Veronica Lake. And if you wish to learn the name of the man in the framed portrait, you won't find it among the cast. The fact is that the man who did that acting job is the picture's producer, Paul Jones.

This is the fourth Preston Sturges film produced by Jones, but it is the first in which he has exhibited his acting talents. A former actor, Jones was prevailed upon by Sturges to don wig, handkerchief mustache, stiff collar and outmoded striped jacket and pose for a series of "mugging" pictures.

Jones says he had so much fun doing the bit that hereafter he'll put up no resistance whatever if he's asked to take small roles in Sturges pictures.

ward, shrivel and lose color. This damage retards or stops the growth of the fruit and unless the aphids are checked the plant dies.

The best remedy is spraying with nicotine sulphate or dusting the foliage with a nicotine dust. Completely cover the undersides of the foliage or turn over the vines before spraying so as to actually hit the lice. Rotenone dust or pyrethrum sprays are also effective in controlling these pests.

Rudy Vallee Enlists in the Coast Guard

LONG BEACH, Calif., Aug. 18 (AP)—Rudy Vallee, band leader and crooning radio star, has joined the coast guard as a band master with the rank of chief petty officer. Lieut. Max Sturges, assistant personnel officer in the Long Beach coast guard office, said Vallee had been approved physically and "now is going through the details."

There was no previous announcement today that he had come here from Hollywood to enlist. He is 41 years old. Vallee enlisted in the navy at the age of 15, just before World War I, and spent three months in the service before his age was discovered. He was shipped home. In 1934 he was commissioned a lieutenant commander in the naval reserve.

He will be stationed temporarily at the San Pedro operating base and be in charge of the coast guard band.

Mrs. Roosevelt's 'My Day' Brings Sharp Reprimand

Censor Complains about Reference to Weather in Her Column

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP). Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt states in her syndicated column "My Day" that she had received a "stern letter" from the censorship board for commenting on the weather.

"The censor has written me a very stern letter about my remarks on the weather, and so from now on I shall not tell you whether it rains or whether the sun shines where I happen to be," she wrote. "I imagine it is permissible to mention whether it is hot or cold, and I can tell you with joy that it was cold enough on Saturday to take a walk in Washington with pleasure."

George A. Carlin, general manager of United Features, which syndicates Mrs. Roosevelt's column, said that he had received a communication last week specifically referring to Mrs. Roosevelt's discussion of "Rain and Showers" in one

UNLESS YOU can run nine tricks as soon as you gain the lead, a No Trump game is a risky proposition when you have only a single stopper in some suit. If the opponents knock that one out at the beginning, you have to try either of two methods. One is to take your nine tricks at once, if you can, and the other is to try to keep out of the lead hand which possesses the long suit. The hold-up play sometimes will work in this and sometimes not.

Against that West opened the heart K. South let it win, took the J with the A and ruffed the 9 with the spade Q. Three high spades of his own cleared trumps and the diamond 3 was led toward the K. West ducked, and the defenders managed to get one trick in each minor. South making his contract right on the head.

At another table of the same duplicate, the bidding went the same up to the point shown above where South bid 3-Spades. That South instead bid 3-No Trumps, and North left it. South was taking a chance on the heart A being the only stopper he needed in that suit, but was wrong.

Holding up until the third round of hearts, this declarer then ran six spades and led to the club suit, playing the 10. East won with the K and naturally switched to a diamond. The A took that and West finished with hearts, setting the contract two tricks. The set could have been limited to one by taking the club A on the tenth trick, but the contract could not have been made by doing that. West was always bound to get the lead and run hearts.

How would you play this deal as a 3-No Trumps declarer in the East if South leads the heart 3. North putting on the 10?

SALLY'S SALLIES

WIFE PRESERVERS

Mild-flavored syrups, like honey or corn syrup, may be used by the home canner to sweeten her product.

These sweeteners may be used as one-half only of the sugar in canning. Syrups with distinctive flavors, like maple, sorghum or molasses, will spoil the delicate flavor of the fruit.
